After some discussion it was agreed to change it in order to prevent the accumulation of greenbacks and silver dollars in the reserve.

The conference to-day returned to the rediscount section of the bill to reconsider its action of last week, when the maturity term of rediscountable notes was changed from forty-five to sixty days. It was agreed to retain the forty-five-day term, after a proposal by Representative Wingo to extend the term to six months had been rejected.
